Support Our Mission to Empower Caregivers

"I am indebted to Path Forward. I have gone through such a great struggle to get back to work. Despite me having all the education, experience, capabilities to work, I was not even given a chance. Path Forward helped me break through that barrier and get into a workplace that gave me a chance to prove myself."

JOB TRAINING PROGRAMS (BOOTCAMPS)

Job Training Programs, also known as bootcamps, are short term, intense training programs designed to prepare students for the practical reality of the job. Some use bootcamps as a way to start or shift into a tech career, while others enroll to learn new skills to advance in their job, or return to the workforce.

Subjects Include:

- Software Engineering
- UX/UI Design
- Digital Marketing
- Cybersecurity
- Data Science
- Data Analytics
- Data Engineering
- Tech Sales

CERTIFICATIONS

Getting certain certifications to help you specialize is a great way to become more marketable in a competitive job market. Some are free, and some have a cost associated with them.

Certifications usually include coursework and testing that allows you to claim mastery of a skill set on your resume. Some require a certain amount of experience.

There are three primary reasons why certification might benefit you:

- Skill development
- Marketability
- Credibility

The Bootcamp Market

2021 State of the Bootcamp - <https://careerkarma.com/blog/bootcamp-market-report-2021/>

MARKET SIZE

44,254

In 2020, 44,254 people attended or graduated from the bootcamps we studied, a 30.32% increase from our last report.

SKILLS

Web development and software engineering skills dominated in 2020. HTML, CSS, JavaScript, SQL, and Python were the most popular skills learned.

TUITION

$11,727

The average bootcamp cost $11,727 in 2020.

ISAs

47 Programs

47 bootcamps offered Income Share Agreements (ISAs) in 2020.

EMPLOYERS

In order of total people employed, Amazon, Google, Facebook, Microsoft, and JPMorgan Chase were the top employers of bootcamp students.

Why Bootcamp?

Bootcamps are worth it for people who want a faster way to re-start a career in technology. Bootcamps aren't as comprehensive as traditional four-year degree programs or Master's, but they are more affordable and take only three months to a year to complete.

Many employers hire bootcamp graduates because of their specialized skills and the hands-on experience they receive from their bootcamp program.

- 1 Coding bootcamps are less expensive than a traditional college program.
- 2 Coding bootcamps focus on training you for a specific career.
- 3 Most coding bootcamp programs last a few months to just over a year.
- 4 Many coding bootcamps allow students to attend with no prior technology experience.
- 5 Most coding bootcamps are taught by industry professionals, many of which still working in the fields they teach.
- 6 Coding bootcamps provide additional aid outside of courses, such as mentoring, career coaching, and academic help.
- 7 Coding bootcamps often offer online, weekend, and night course to fit around the schedules of working professionals.
- 8 There are several ways to pay for a coding bootcamp, such as through scholarships, the GI Bill, deferred tuition, and income share agreements.
- 9 Major tech companies such as Google, IBM, Apple, Salesforce, Dell, and many others have hired students immediately after they've graduated from a coding bootcamp.
- 10 The average salary of a coding bootcamp graduate is around $60,000 – $70,000.
